Vlad Timofte
Visiting Associate Professor

Tuesday, March 3, 2009

Title: The solution of a long standing open problem: Finding a good differentiation theory on locally convex spaces

Abstract: The goal was not to find new theorems, but to make the old ones work in a convenient locally convex setting. The talk will discuss the old results (including the existence of implicit functions and of inverse functions) in a new setting.